

Pet Nose Impression Kit

What does my impression kit include?

- White and blue moulding compound - the number of pots of compound will depend upon the size of your pet, as selected at purchase
- Grip seal bags
- A pre paid envelope to return impressions

How do I take the impression of my dogs nose?

- Ensure your pets nose is clean - wipe with a baby wipe or damp cloth, if they will let you.
- Ensure your pet is as relaxed as possible
- Remove the contents of ONE pot of white compound and ONE pot of blue compound
- Mix them together until you have an even coloured blue ball - it is important that there is no marbling
- Place the ball of moulding compound in the palm of your hand and squish it slightly to ensure you can capture your pets entire nose
- Lower your hand to your pets nose and gently push the moulding compound on their nose - it won't hurt them.
- Remove from their nose - it'll come away easily, leaving the moulding compound on your hand, with hopefully, a lovely impression of their nose.
- If you can't see an impression or you are not happy with what you see, you can roll the compound into a ball and repeat the process, be quick though, as once the two colours are mixed it will start to cure.
- Once you're happy with the impression you see in your hand, leave it in your hand to fully cure. You will know when it is fully cured by putting your fingernail into the compound on the edge, if your fingernail leaves a mark in the compound then it has not fully set. It'll take approx 5 minutes to fully cure. Do NOT remove the compound from your hand until fully cured as doing so will distort the impression.
- Repeat again with the other pots of compound - we like you to take two impressions, so we can select the best one for your jewellery.
- Pop the impressions in the grip seal bag and return to us in the pre paid envelope
- We'll send you an email to confirm receipt of your impressions and to confirm final design details.
